McGhee Tyson Airport, between the Great Smokies and Cumberlands among the TVA lakes, serves Knoxville, Maryville-Alcoa, and Oak Ridge. The modern facility, 10 miles south of Knoxville on U. S. 129 at Alcoa, is a port of entry and has an international trade mart. Airport is named for Navy Lieutenant Charles McGhee Tyson, Knoxville pilot killed over the North Sea in 1918 raid on a German submarine base.
